

“Grace unto you, and peace, be multiplied.”

(1 Peter 1:2)

October 2025

Dear Friends,

We at The Principle Foundation send you — our partners in this divine expression of philanthropy — the same blessing: “Grace unto you, and peace, be multiplied.”

Searching deeper into this statement, we find these definitions in Strong's Greek Dictionary:

Grace. The divine influence upon the heart, and its reflection in one's life, including gratitude.

Peace. Tie together into a whole. When all the parts are joined together. God's gift of wholeness.

Multiplied: Made full, especially to maximum capacity.

So we might restate this blessing to say, “May the divine influence on your heart and all the parts of your life join together into one stupendous whole.”

May our hearts be so filled with the divine that there is no room for anything else! Can we see through the current claims of division, conflict, war, argument, competition, political upheaval, and the various theories of what's going on? Yes! The divine influence on our hearts allows us to see all the parts joined together under God — a reality we prove one moment at a time: one experience, one grant request, one conversation, one encounter — one healing.

In so doing, we can point “to the glad feast above” (Christian Science Hymnal, Hymn 108), where we all may spiritually enjoy a celestial meal together.

Thank you for allowing us to partner with you in this divine journey.

With deep love and gratitude,
